In this situation, there already exist various systems in which you can create campaigns with specific goals. These goals are sorted by the CMS.

To use them, you must create a connection between the goal and the campaign to which they apply. Also, you must give the campaign to the web hosting company so that it can view and validate the goal. At this point, your next step is to develop goals that each client should do. There are likely to be some different goals. The important thing to understand here is that the goal selected should be done every time an individual makes a visit to the site.
