It is with some pleasure that we introduce you to Jeannieanne Long. Jeannieanne's mix of creativity and passion for her work is truly incredible. She is an artist, an author and a photographer. She loves being around people, animals and nature. She is a model/photographer and works for a promotion company. Jeannieanne has been an Adobe Illustrator/CS6 user for over 11 years. She started dabbling in Photoshop years ago, but it wasn't until she was working with PS nonstop for her art that she realized it is far more than just a graphics program. Photoshop allows you to create graphics for such things as websites (we have a website), catalogs, etc. You can even create pastel drawings, graphite drawings and watercolor drawings. You can create böé, headshots, etc. In some cases, you will need to create a business card or flyer graphic. If you can't find what you are looking for, you can alter certain filter settings or create a new filter. It is always important to understand the basics of how filters work. If you can't find tools to alter, add or subtract something, it's not that difficult to make your own effects. When I was in High school I use the school's administration's computer lab to create Photoshop artwork with my high school art teacher. I remember how limited and pretty much unusable it's Paint Shop Pro spectrum was. Flash was probably the closest thing to Photoshop at the time. I still feel like Paint Shop Pro is the most intuitive, desktop version of Photoshop.
